Stan Musial "We Still Got A Chance To Catch Them" As Dodgers Drop 3-1 Decision To Reds

By MARTIN LADER

United Press International
If Stan Musial is as sharp with his words as he is with his bat, there's another dark cloud hanging over Los Angeles.

The Dodgers, who apparently had wrapped up the National League pennant with a seven-game win streak last week, continue to be their own worst enemies as the race heads for the treacherous September stretch.

Musial promised Monday after his St. Louis Cardinals had whipped the San Francisco Giants, 6-3, that "we've still got a chance to overtake them."

The Dodgers then added life to the prophecy by dropping a 3-1 decision to the Cincinnati Reds Monday night, allowing the Cards to creep within 5 1/2 games of the league lead.

Los Angeles now has lost four of five games in its home park following the impressive streak, and 1962 isn't so far behind that the players don't remember.

The Milwaukee Braves slugged the Houston Colts, 11-7, in Monday's only other National League contest.

American League action was limited to a two-night doubleheader at Washington between the Minnesota Twins and the Senators. Minnesota lost a chance to gain a firmer hold on second place by dropping the nightcap, 7-3, after capturing the first game, 5-2.

O'Toole Is Winner
Jim O'Toole, a loser in eight of his last 10 decisions, was the messenger of ill tidings for the Dodgers. The husky left-hander retired the first 10 men he faced and limited Los Angeles to five hits for the game to gain his 16th triumph against 11 losses.

Gordy Coleman provided the major share of the batting support with his ninth home run of the year following a single by Frank Robinson in the fourth inning. The Reds picked up their final run in the eighth when Tommy Harper scored from first base on a Vada Pinson single and a poor relay throw by Junior Gilliam.

The lone Dodger score came in the fourth when Tommy Davis singled home Willie Davis, who had walked. Don Drysdale (16-15) was the losing pitcher.

The Cardinals pushed across three runs in the ninth inning to snap a two-game losing slump and foil Juan Marichal's bid for his 20th victory. Singles by Curt Flood, Dick Groat and Ken Boyer provided the decisive runs after the Giants had tied the score in the eighth. George Altman had a two-run homer for St. Louis in the top of the eighth.

Homer For Braves
Eddie Mathews, Don Eiland and Hank Aaron all hit homers for the Braves to more than offset an inside-the-park circuit by Houston's John Betsman. Aaron thus followed Orlando Cepeda and Willie McCovey of the Giants with a home run in each of the National League parks this season. Relief pitcher Ron Fife gained his first triumph of the year.

Resounding back-to-back homers by Harmon Killebrew and Bob Allison sparked the second-place Twins to their opening game victory. Dick Sigman, with late-inning relief from Bill Dalbey, eased his record at 11-11. But the Twins' edge over Chicago was narrowed to a half-game again when the Senators

TV CAMEOS: Don Kranze

Big Shooting—On Sidewalks of New York

Members of the production crew of CBS-TV's "East Side, West Side" set up sound and camera equipment in a tenement backyard before shooting a scene for the new series.

By ED MISURELL

SHOOTING an hour-long, weekly television series on permanent studio sets is usually a difficult job. When you move out of the studio and on to the streets of a vast city like New York, it often becomes a frenetic, backbreaking chore.

It involves getting permits from various civic departments and individuals, problems with noise, heat, cold, rain and snow, curious bystanders and scores of other irritations which crop up unexpectedly.

Why does a video company take on the tension-ridden task? "One very important reason—authenticity," said Don Kranze, producer of "East Side, West Side," a new CBS series which debuts Sept. 23.

"OUR SHOW, which is concerned with the dramatic activities of a social worker, demands shooting on location. The city plays a key part in it. It would be impossible to get the realism we do without filming on the streets. If the public—the viewers—were to feel that our stories were not played out in a real background, we'd be in trouble."

Youthful-looking Kranze, a behind-the-scenes veteran of 15 years in show business, said that the crew and actors spend an average of two days on location.

order of each show. The series, said Kranze, will have George C. Scott, Victor Arnold and Diana Sands as regular cast members. "Scott is a top pro," he added, "and has been a tremendous force in this operation. He is not just an actor playing a part, paying lip service to the social evils of our times. He is doing a terrific job because he feels 'East Side, West Side' has something to say forcefully and morally."

To assure further authenticity, as each script is finished it is carefully gone over by the National Association of Social Workers. "Of a number of occasions," said Kranze, "they have suggested changes and we have made them promptly in the interest of accuracy."

KRANZE and company apparently are "hicker" to date than the "Naked City" company which completed last season some five years of shooting all over New York. "Practically each show," said one crewman recently, "had a dozen directors—one professional and all the local 'geniuses' in the neighborhood. On the Bowery one day a derelict kept yelling at the cameraman, 'Roll 'em! Roll 'em! This is costing $2,000 a foot!'"

"We did," added the crewman, "and it turned out to be a pretty good show."

"Fortunately for TV companies like ours, the city has become much more co-operative in recent years. Mary Imperato, who works for Commerce, is a whiz at getting things done. She types up the proper forms and sends them off to the people who will be directly involved—water, gas, electricity, traffic headquarters, borough president's office and the police pre-arranged by Vice Features Syndicate.

"GREAT TRAIN ROBBERY" LEFTOVERS—Scotland Yard released these photos in London of equipment left in the farmhouse hideout by the gang that robbed the mail train to the tune of $7.3 million: sleeping bags, kitchen kits, canned food, tableware. (Radiophotos) capitalized on Dick Phillips' homer and erratic Minnesota pitching to capture the nightcap. Starter Steve Ridsick (5-4) was the winner.

GOLDEN, Utah — Kathy Whitworth captured the Utah Women's Open golf tournament with 214 — five strokes ahead of Mickey Wright.

for administration by the Department of Highways in Calloway County each fiscal year and the county will not have to rely upon being treated as a political favorite in order to receive its fair attention. This is a much more equitable arrangement than existed in the past. For example, in the 1958-59 fiscal year the total expenditure in Calloway County from the Rural Secondary funds was $233,000, but this amount dropped to only $107,000 in 1959-60. Under the formula now in effect the gross allocation from the Rural Secondary funds to Calloway County for the 1963-64 fiscal year figured out to be $195,836.22. I assure you that all citizens of Calloway County that there will be proper expenditures of all these funds which under the action that I initiated, are guaranteed to Calloway County. Any funds reserved for administration or maintenance at the beginning of a fiscal year will be expended for construction if not needed for those purposes.

Attention must be given to the fact that the Legislature in passing this law in 1948 provided that the receipts from the 2¢ gasoline tax be used for the construction, reconstruction and maintenance of a system of rural and secondary roads. The Kentucky Department of Highways is charged with the responsibility of seeing to it that this law is carried out properly. Therefore, while the Department properly asks for advice from local fiscal court members and other people in Calloway County are interested in highways, it is the final responsibility of the Department of Highways to see to it that the money is spent properly. I think this is the "proper" law in view of the fact that this money is levied and raised by state taxes and the state, obviously, must assume the responsibility for its administration and, therefore, must have authority to do so. This is a proper expenditure of the money.

In this regard, there is one statement in your editorial where you stated, "After all, this is money which came originally from Calloway County and is merely coming back to the county as its share of the total." Actually, the tax is levied and collected on a statewide basis and it is not distributed among the counties on the basis of the amount they actually pay into the fund. I think this is entirely proper or otherwise the more populous and bigger counties would get the treatment of Murray and Mr. and Mrs. Vernie Kendall of Mayfield.

Mr. and Mrs. George Obenour of Miami, Florida, were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Ryan on Glendale Road. This is the second visit the Ryans have had from their long-time friends who were their neighbors while living in Miami. Mr. Obenour is in the construction business in Miami and Nassau, and while in this part of the country, spent some time looking over properties with an interest in buying land for a summer-vacation location. They left today for Baltimore, Maryland, to visit friends there before returning to their home in Miami at N.E. Miami Place.

Yours very truly,
Henry Ward

mentous share of the total because they paid in a much higher percentage. Under any allocation which would give consideration to the amount actually paid into the state road fund, Jefferson County, for example, would get almost 40% of the entire amount as records show that about 40% of the road fund is collected in Jefferson County. The receipts from the 2¢ gasoline tax are distributed among the counties on the highway formula which gives special consideration to rural area and mileage of roads. I think this is entirely proper.

In addition, attention should be called to the fact that I personally approved numerous projects for Calloway County which were financed 100% out of state funds and are not charged to the Rural Secondary allotment. The total amount during the time that I have been Commissioner of Highways is $466,431.24. As a matter of fact, we advertised last week for four highway projects and two of these roads are in Calloway County.

Under the formula in effect for the distribution of Rural Secondary funds—no administration can play political favorite and give Calloway County an unfairly large portion of the total. On the other hand, an unfriendly administration cannot penalize Calloway County by cutting its fair share of these funds. While this is the business of the Calloway Fiscal Court and no personal affair of mine, I happen to be in agreement with your recommendation that Calloway County would do well to employ a qualified engineer to work with the engineers of the Highway Department in the construction and maintenance of county roads. As a native of nearby McCracken County, I am very familiar with what has happened in that county over a period of 35 years in the building of a fine road system. Throughout all of this time, McCracken County has had a registered engineer in charge of its road program. At the present time, McCracken County has one of the best county road systems of any county in the state and has an excellent working arrangement with the Kentucky Department of Highways, of which I am proud since I still think of that as home.

I want to assure you, Judge Miller, and other officials and people of Calloway County that I personally have your interests at heart and will be glad to work with you in any way possible in the improvement of the highway program, both on state roads and county roads in Calloway County.

Yours very truly,
Henry Ward
Commissioner

Dear Abby . . .

A Reason For Telling!

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I am married to a man ten years younger than myself. We had both been divorced and were lonesome, and he said it made no difference that I was older, as he didn't care for the younger girls. I had a nice-looking man in his 30's.

I have a grown son and daughter, both working. I held a good job and had money in the bank and a nice home, all paid for. He asked me to sell my house, trade in my car for a new one, quit my job and move to another city with him. This I did gladly. I bought another house and got another job. He's working, too.

My heartbreak came when we were at a night club one night and he said, "If we run into anyone I know, I will introduce you as my AUNT!" Now I find out he has told everyone that he is a bachelor. I am so hurt and sick. Please tell me what to do, Abby. Should I leave him?

HIDDEN WIFE
DEAR HIDDEN: Don't convict your husband on circumstantial evidence. Put it to him this way: "Are you ashamed of me? Would you prefer to be a bachelor. Make up your mind. I'm your wife in private and in public. Or not at all."

DEAR ABBY: Our young son was given a cute little baby duck last Easter, and now it is a full-grown nuisance. He is up at dawn, quacking worse than a rooster. He was hit by a motor scooter and suffered a broken wing so we took him to the vet to have his wing set. Another time he pestered our collie dog and almost of his feathers torn off. He lost an eye. Just last week he ate some poison berries and we had to take him to the vet's again. This poor bird has cost us $33 in doctor and drug bills. We can't kill it because he's a "pet." Does anybody wanna buy a duck?

DUCK TROUBLE
DEAR DUCK TROUBLE: Not with the recommendation YOU'VE given it. The answer is easy as duck soup. Call your S.P.C.A. and tell them you are all fowled up.

DEAR ABBY: My dear father-in-law died six months ago. Had he lived a little longer, my mother-in-law and he would have celebrated their golden wedding anniversary next month. My sister-in-law wants to give a big anniversary party.

My mother-in-law and I believe such a celebration would be improper. What is your opinion?

JUST WONDERING
DEAR WONDERING: Your husband and you are right. Since your father-in-law is not living, such a celebration would be improper. Give your mother-in-law a corsage and invite her to a quiet family dinner.

DEAR ABBY: Please tell that stupid Mother Of Five in Philadelphia that bearing a child does not make one a mother any more than buying a piano makes one a musician.

and Mrs. Hoyt Miller of Puryear, Tenn., and the bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Laverne Adams of Murray and the late Hafford Adams.

The sacred vows were said before an altar softly lighted on each side by white tapers in branched candelabra. A background of emerald foliage was accented with white gladioli. The family pews were marked by burning tapers surrounded by greenery and white satin bows.

A program of wedding music preceding the ceremony was presented by Mrs. Jane Kemp McCoy, organist, and Miss Peggy Wall, vocalist. After several organ selections, Miss Wall sang "I Love Thee" by Greg. "Oh Day of Golden Promise" by Hamblen and, at the close of the ceremony, "One Heart, One Hand." The wedding party entered to the traditional "Bridal Chorus" from "Lohengrin." The wedding march from "A Mid-Summer Night's Dream" by Mendelssohn was used as a recessional.

The bride entered on the arm of her father, who gave her in marriage. Her wedding gown was fashioned from white satin appliqued with Alencon lace and seed pearls. The fitted bodice featured a round neck and quarter-slit sleeves. The semi-bell skirt and flowing train fell from box pleats accented in the back with a white satin rose. Her chapel-length veil fell from white satin pillbox covered in lace and pearls. The bridal bouquet was a white orchid surrounded by stephanotis and mallow on a white ribbon given the bride by her YWA.

Miss Jackie Miller, sister of the bride, was maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Mrs. Lynnet McElroy of Paris and Mrs. Carolyn McAllister of Jackson, Tenn.

The bride's attendants were dressed in glowing gold brocaded satin dresses featuring fitted bodices and bell-shaped skirts. Picture hats and pumps of matching gold satin accented the dresses. Short, white gloves, a gift from the bride, completed their attire. Each attendant carried a long stem yellow rose.

Isaac Adams of Murray served his brother as best man. Ushers included Don Treas, brother-in-law of the bridegroom, Hers Ranley Cooper and Mike Charlton, cousins of the bridegroom, all of Murray, and Larry Miller, cousin of the bride, of Paris.

Reception

Following the ceremony, the bride's parents entertained with a reception in their home.

The bride's mother greeted the guests in a candy pink linen and lace with black velvet and patent accessories. Her corsage was a purple orchid.

The mother of the bridegroom wore a beige dress of coral tulle and lace. She wore matching beige accessories and a purple orchid corsage.

The bride's table, covered with a white linen cloth, was centered with a bouquet of yellow roses and white stock. Smilax linked the crystal punchbowl to a tiered wedding cake topped with a miniature bride and
